Providence Center, a non-profit organization that serves adults with developmental disabilities, announced recently its 20th-annual Moran Golf Classic netted more than $60,000 for the organization's programs and services.

This is the most successful classic to date with more than 39 sponsors and nearly 200 golfers that contributed to the event. The classic was held on June 4, 2012, at Queenstown Harbor in Queenstown. Moran Insurance was presenting sponsor for the 16th year.

Golf classic committee co-chairs Conor Gilligan and Matt Lehmann released the following statement: "This year's classic broke the record for the most successful tournament to date. We are very grateful for the efforts of our committee members, the support of all of our sponsors, and the time of our volunteers to make the day fun and solidify this tournament as one of the premiere events in the area."

Providence Center Executive Director Chuck Coble added, "The golf classic is one of the most important fundraising events we hold each year. It raises much-needed funds so that we can continue to keep our professional care staff in place and our doors open for those who rely on us each day. Thank you to everyone that helped make this year the best yet and we look forward to breaking even more records with next year's classic."

The event netted $60,290, all of which will go directly to supporting Providence Center's dynamic programs and services for adults with developmental disabilities.
